Director's Update

The library's booth at Town & Country Days was very successful. Staff & volunteers hid rubber ducks around the park and other vendors. Each duck had a riddle to be solved, the answer to each being "The Library". When kids found the duck, they got a prize. We saw almost four hundred people during the four hours we were there. We were able to use up some of the leftover small prizes from summer reading and to hand out a lot of children's books that we had been storing.

Ali created a new, simplified categorization system for the juvenile non-fiction section. The old system has more sub-categories than necessary for our small collection. Staff are working on changing the section over to the new system.
